What do our customers THINK?

DailyDAC's Premium Public Notice service is money well spent because of its readership among interested buyers."

– Joshua Olshin

I recently used DailyDAC for the first time in a chapter 11 case where I represent a 186 unit retail chain. We requested that the court allow us to use DailyDAC because we thought it would be more effective in reaching our target audience and it was significantly cheaper than advertising in a newspaper. DailyDAC did not disappoint. Service was fast and courteous, and our successful bidder told us it learned about the auction after seeing our advertisement in the DailyDAC. I certainly plan to use DailyDAC on an ongoing basis."

Acting as receiver for a large mixed-use real property complex in Atlanta, I placed a Premium Public Notice ad for the sale, which rapidly yielded good leads."

DailyDAC's

PREMIUM PUBLIC NOTICE SERVICE

What's right with DailyDAC?

General circulation newspapers reach a broad but unfocused audience; most readers just don't care about public auctions of commercial assets. Moreover, most newspapers' geographic reach is limited, their ads are expensive, and there is significant lead time from the time you place the ad to the time it runs.

Placing a DailyDAC Premium Public Notice Ad is a smart supplement to, or replacement for, a newspaper ad. And having placed a PPN Ad with DailyDAC may just be the difference between a court finding that notice was — or was not — conducted in a commercially reasonable manner. To read more about the risks of relying solely on newspaper ads to satisfy notice requirements, read this.

Note also, that unlike most other public notices, PPNs typically include an "about us" paragraph about the firm conducting the auction.

Who places Premium Public Notice ads with DailyDAC?

DailyDAC's customers include auctioneers, fiduciaries (e.g., Chapter 11 debtors-in-possession and committees, trustees, receivers, assignees) & secured lenders selling collateral under UCC Article 9.

PPN ads are also available to help disseminate notice of other events, deadlines, and milestones – including tombstones and other press releases.
